

King Charles III took his children litter picking in Norfolk. As the Prince of Wales (previously Prince William) said 'we were there with our spikes stabbing the rubbish into black plastic bags'.

Great news. We've made lots of progress on methane emissions from landfill sites – they are now nearly a quarter of their 1990 levels.

Every single piece of litter you can pick up (or prevent) can help wildlife. The RSPCA receive a call every two hours about animals injured by litter.

Join your community taking action as part of Great Big Green Week.

Go on a litter hunt ... find those sneaky, cheeky pieces of rubbish!

It's Great Big Green Week! Join with your community ... picking up litter?

Head to your park or playground and find at least 5 sneaky items that haven't made it to the bin ... and recycle them if you can.

Recycling, rather than landfill, reduces greenhouse gas emissions, helping to combat climate change.

23rd September challenge!

When you've completed this challenge ... Remember to hit the red button!

